Editor's Note

A sentence in "Keeping Up with Demographic Change: Higher Education at the Start of the Next Century" by Brad Edmondson, The College Board Review, No. 180, page 28, paragraph 2, inadvertently misstated the author's intent. We regret any confusion this may have caused.

The corrected sentence is printed below:

Ninety percent of Asian children, 77 percent of non-Hispanic white children, 65 percent of Hispanic children, and only 36 percent of black children lived in two-parent households in 1993.
